NOT YOUR GRANDFATHER'S BLUEGRASS!

The Anvil Brothers, formed in the winter of 2012, are a contemporary acoustic band from central Virginia with bluegrass instrumentation but are definitely not your grandfather's bluegrass. The current line-up includes Taylor Clark on bass along with original members Jim Mohr (mandolin, guitar, violin), Doug Hepler (guitar) and Donnie Durham (banjo, dobro).

At one of their shows you may hear anything from Jimmie Rodgers to Jimi Hendrix. Live shows consist of about 50% original songs and 50% cover tunes on which they have put their own stamp. The Anvil Brothers released their first CD in March of 2018.

This CD, entitled "Little Stories", showcases not only their unique songwriting abilities but their strong instrumental and vocal talents as well. The CD contains eleven original tunes and one completely remodeled traditional tune. It is now available from CD Baby and iTunes and will be available at live shows and other select outlets in early April 2018. Also, "Little Stories" can be heard in its entirety on Spotify.
